Another school year is drawing to a close and another graduation is approaching. You are our second graduating class — but the first class to graduate from the newly enlarged and renovated Monklands. I am sure that the additions and renovations to our School have pleasurably influenced your last year, and have assisted you in your school activities and in your studies.

We are all proud of the academic record of our first Graduating Class and I trust it will serve as an inspiration to you as you are about to write the closing chapter of your own high school life. I have every confidence that when the scroll of achievement is unrolled after our forthcoming June examinations, that the name of Monklands High School will continue to gather new lustre as indeed it has already from your successes in other school activities during your stay here.

I know that in the years to come this Annual will help you to recall with pleasure your school associates in work and play and the many friendships you formed while at Monklands.

We are sorry to see you go, and our best wishes for your happiness go with you.

C. G. Hewson
Principal.

EDITORIAL

Each spring, after many years of study and hard work, a new group of students find themselves standing at the portals of the world. Before us lies our life; behind us, our years of growth. The class of '59 looks out now as graduation comes closer; many of our big decisions are yet to be made. Some of us will turn to more education, while others will enter the business world. We shall be taken out of the daily routine which has become our schedule for the past eleven years. We shall be turned into the world to try to find the place we want. We shall embark on a mature, adult existence. How much shall we budget for the food of thought, for new hopes, for stout resolves, for seeds of hidden talent to wake and bring forth the dormant ideas they contain, and for the feelings of kindness, goodness towards all? We are so few — our tiny handful — in a world of rush and hurry. However, we must always remember the fine lessons of our youth while we grope for a position on the ladder of life.

We were taught, irrespective of what field we may enter, that our goal can never be achieved without a good deal of hard, honest labour — be it mental, physical, or both. The doors of the world are open to us; but we cannot attain our ideal in a short period of time. We must cross the wilderness, cutting our way through ignorance and prejudice, clearing a path for good living, and seeking knowledge and understanding of ourselves and others. Eventually the day will dawn when we shall find our place in society as respected citizens of our country. Till that day, let us always strive to better ourselves, to better our world. When we have reached our destination and our fondest dreams have been realized, let us never forget the simple lessons of honour, work, truth, and kindness that constitute our foundation.

SUMMER DUSK

The night
Comes cooling,
Her soft caress
Melts heat of day,
Hushes throbbing Humanity
In the purple cool of dusk,
The stilling world breathes softer, slower;
Night balm settles o'er day dust.
Hush lulls deeper to sweet silence
As purple turns blue-black cool;
Stars unfold in unfathomed space
And Mankind mute lies night-engulfed.

THE GREATEST INFLUENCE IN MY LIFE

Who has been the greatest influence in my life? Has it been my mother who has cared for me since infancy; or my father, who has disciplined me when it was necessary, rewarded my successes, and encouraged me to try again when I have failed? Has it been a relative or a close friend? No, my guiding light has been none of these people.

The inspiration of my life might be called a teacher. As an infant, He taught me to cry, letting my mother know when I was in pain. He was always by my side when I was taking my first steps, urging me to take "just one more footstep."

As I grew up, He showed me the difference between good and evil. When I was tempted to do the wrong thing, He held me back. He punished me when I was unjust.

In later years, He protected me when I was alone. He kept me safe from harm. In fact, He still watches over me. He calls me His lamb.

He has always emboldened me to set my goals high, to do only that which I would wish others do to me.

He has taught me to have faith in Him. He says there should be no need for me to question His actions. He assures me that I will be richly rewarded if I perform His wishes and help my fellow man do the same.

He has given me the most expensive Book in all the world! I can refer to it in time of sorrow, need, sickness; when I am trying to help a friend; or when I am just plain happy and thankful for my numerous blessings.

Yes, the greatest influence in my life has been and always will be God — THE TEACHER, THE RELATIVE, THE FATHER, and THE FRIEND to whom I can always turn!

BRENDA SULLIVAN, XID, R.308

SORROW

Sorrow with unending vigor
Strikes like thunder from her crest,
Reaching out for king and beggar —
One and all to take her test.
Where least expected there she probes,
Clothed in her native coal-black robes;
Clutching onto all she sees
With strength resembling Hercules,
Spreads suffering out across the globe.
I know not one man free from strife
Whose soul undaunted goes his way;
To all alike the cares of life
Come-first to visit — them to stay.

JUDY LEVINSON, XIA, R.301

GRACE

When one enjoys the green wood's fragrance,
And stands surrounded by its grace,
One cannot help but feel God's presence
Shining warmly on his face.
Each leafy tree, its branches raising
To the heavens far above,
Seems its Maker to be praising
For His bounteous, wondrous love.
Like a lush green rug, the grass
Adorns the earth o'er hill and vale;
And all the flowers and streams we pass
Their matchless Maker seem to hail.
How much more should we extol
And give to Him our highest praise!
For how far short we humans fall
Of such great undeserved Grace!

STAR GAZING

He sat by his window and looked at nothing really, and yet he saw a great deal more than we would have seen. His hands were idle. But, sitting there, he moulded great works of art and built towering structures. He sat there, in his own room, in an ordinary city, on the same planet as you and I. But in reality, he was out in space, examining a star.

I wondered, as I watched him from my perch on the piano stool, how he had acquired his marvelous gift of abstraction. Had he been unhappy in this world and so forsaken it for his own? What was he dreaming of? A better world, perhaps, or a new concerto, or some lovely poem, half forgotten?

As I sat thus lost in my own thoughts, the sanctity of that precious room was shattered by the entrance of his mother.

"Day-dreaming again! And you haven't even hung up your coat..." I could not help smiling to myself. A mere coat! How trivial, when worlds are being explored, and castles built. I wondered whether Signora da Vinci had scolded her little Leo exactly in that way, hundreds of years ago. I remembered reading somewhere that Mrs. Nightingale had remonstrated the carelessness of Florence, and that George Washington's father had found it difficult to understand his son.

He resumed his vigil, and I wandered about the room, examining its wonders. Pinned to the cupboard door, at a crazy angle, was a small sketch. It showed a land of golden trees and yellow skies, and brown-skinned children dancing around a silver rock. I opened the door, and a small box on four wheels rolled out, whirring emphatically as it went. Closer inspection revealed a home-made horn and a painted-on dashboard with one lone light. On his bed, flat on its face was a book, and its author was Jules Verne.

Then he stood up and went to the piano. With the first note, my soul flew out the very window at which he had kept his watch. The keys dripped of waterfalls and sunlight, and there I was in the green glade. They sang of peace and beauty and all that is worth doing. I felt that I too must conquer a star—the music was driving me out — out into the great space — out to the home of da Vinci, Nightingale, and Washington!

I fled from the room to search for the twinkling planet which I had glimpsed through that wonderful window. And gently, I closed the door behind me.

PERSPECTIVE

O come and gaze at this wonderful day,
With all the trees in crystal array!
Iced jewels shine upon our path,
The snow as soft as bubble bath.
Snow fairies toil all through the night
To make the world a glorious sight.
Snow diamonds appear to dazzle the eye —
Crusty snowdrifts wide and high,
Snowflakes falling thick and fast,
A magician's spell they seem to cast.
Swooping winds and driving snow,
Laden trees with sparkling glow.

THE DYING PIRATE

A gun and sword are found on me,
I am a pirate of the sea.
My craft I sail from here to there,
That is, whene'er the weather's fair;
I am a man of wit and might,
Sly, alert, and ready to fight;
If any man gets in my way,
He will not live to end the day;
And now, I dream of fights and wars,
Of sinking ships, and death's dark doors,
So now I stand on my sinking boat,
To say goodbye, while I'm still afloat.

JEAN EDWARDS, VIII-G, R.101

FORLORN

Nobody loves me, — I wonder why!
I used to be liked in days gone by.
Because I'm old and all worn out,
My home is the closet, where I stand and pout.
I remember the time when I was king!
Then I could do' most anything,
But since new inventions have come into being
My pride has received a horrible sting.
No more am I looked on with favour galore!

No more am I used for every chore!
I'm not even given a place in the shop . . .
Can I help it if I'm only a mop?

UP THE OXTONGUE RIVER

We stepped into the elegant twenty-nine foot launch, the "Mollie Brown", and settled back in the soft, cushioned seats, waving good-bye to the people on the dock as we roared away. The wind blew our hair every whichway and the cold spray felt like stinging needles on our faces. Behind us huge swells rocked smaller craft wildly, and upset a careless water skier who crossed our path.

Soon the boat left the lake and started up the Oxtongue. The dark water and heavily-wooded shores gave it an almost jungle appearance. The river wound in almost complete circles. We never knew what would be around the next bend. Here and there we would see where the spring floods had undermined the trees, leaving them hanging precariously over the water. Occasionally we noticed marshy areas, and in one of these spots there were evidences of beaver, although the animals did not seem to be around. It was quite a thrill for me to see a kingfisher standing like a wooden statue on a dead log. As we neared the end of the navigable part of the river, the launch suddenly came out at the foot of Marshes Falls. The boat was stopped; everyone disembarked and went to look at the water cascading over the wall of rock. It was a wonderful sight and the perfect end for our trip.

MY FIRST DANCE: OR A DON JUAN WITH TWO LEFT FEET

Help! Save me! Don't make me go to the dance!
I'll do the dishes! I'll clean the house! I'll forfeit my allowance! I'll even do my homework! But please don't let me fall into the clutches of those man-devouring females!

But as Cassandra had pleaded with the Trojans, and as President Roosevelt with the isolationists, so did I plead. In vain! The verdict was handed down and no matter how much I pleaded, nothing would soften the hard hearts of my parents who were doing it "for my own good," to "make a man" of me — not a shy, shivering mouse. When finally my father delivered me to my Waterloo with the parting words, "Tear them apart, Romeo," I felt there was nothing to do but face the music and "dance."

So there I was, the big football hero, at a school dance! How sweet! What if one of my pals saw me? Perhaps I would earn the name "The Mamboing Middle Guard" or "The Queen of the Quarterbacks," and then where would be my reputation with the kids on the block? Perhaps, during a jitterbug, I could make a brokenfield run to the nearest exit, or fake a waltz and go up the middle to the door and then to more familiar ground. But for some strange reason I did neither, and instead found myself "throwing a pass" at one of the girls, smiling sweetly and calculatingly in the corner. Using my "real cool" vocabulary to its fullest extent, I stammered, stuttered, and then finally swept her off her feet with "Nice day, isn't it?" I couldn't figure out why I was suddenly left alone in the corner, glib tongue and all. What approach did Romeo, or Don Juan, or Arthur Godfrey use to extend their string of broken hearts?

After a few dances, during which I regained my composure, I decided to ask another lucky member of the opposite sex to do me the pleasure of the dance. After singling out a "real doll" surrounded by her many admirers, I managed to crash through the line and ask "Er, ah, ahem, might I have the pleasure of the next dance?" With the sweetest smile my eyes have ever seen, she turned towards me and murmured, "I'd be delighted." As we whirled around the floor completely out of step with the music, I prayed and hoped for the floor to swallow me up, but as I wished for this miracle, she whispered, "You dance divinely." Hearing those heavenly words made me a new man, and even when one of her aficionados quipped, "Is the big lug heavy on his feet or yours?" I didn't lose my temper. After the dance, as I was walking home, I wondered what Liberace, Elvis, or even Ed Sullivan had over me, suave, debonair, "bon-vivant" that I was.

To this day I still wonder why the next morning I went out and bought a whole new wardrobe. Ah well, c'est la vie!

MAN'S BEST FRIEND

I have a dog who is a gem —
A product of the pound.
I call him Sport; he is my friend,
Part pointer and fox-hound.
When early off to school I go,
Into the storm and breeze,
He's barking his "good-bye" to me —
If he's not scratching fleas.
When wearily from school I trudge,
As the hour's nearing four,
I know my pal is waiting there
To greet me at the door.

ISLAND OF FEAR

When shipwrecked on the raging sea,
An island became home for me.
Hour by hour, day by day,
I shot, made fire, and ate my prey.
One day I made a discovery —
I found a small banana tree.

I looked at it—but in a trance—
 I saw an arrow at first glance.
 There were no footprints on the ground.
 Then, all at once, I turned around:
 There was a native, back to me—
 Should I stay there or should I flee?
 He turned around; I had to shoot;
 I soon found out he wasn't mute.
 All of the tribe had heard him, and
 Were running barefoot 'cross the sand.
 I ran for life with all my might,
 But one thing slowed me down—my fright.
 I tripped, and then, while off my feet,
 I said a prayer and met defeat.

MEDICAL MANIACS

In a secluded building all their own, on a remote side of the campus, dwell those terrors of the hospital—the medical students. These boisterous, devil-may-care, young "gentlemen" gleefully dissect their fellow classmates instead of the prescribed corpses provided by the anatomy teacher, and may even attempt these practices on their professor if he should object to their drinking whisky during an operation.

However, their attitude toward knowledge is a good one. They enjoy anatomy intensely, and they enthusiastically enter into the study of the scalp, and how to lift it; the ears, and how to remove them; the throat, and how to slit it.

The usual absence of talent in the field of surgery makes the student all the more dangerous. A typical operation would look something like this...

Several "doctors" are frantically attempting to wiggle into large, sack-like uniforms, usually three to four sizes too small; while one of their colleagues vainly tries to fit his pudgy hands into a pair of gloves of a considerably smaller diameter. In a far corner, one of the nurses is checking the instruments: gouges, for gouging; scrapers, for scraping; scalpels, for scalping; etc. Most hospitals also have anaesthetists, many of whom administer anaesthetics.

Observe the young man sitting near the centre of the room. Observe him, and mark him. Mark him in any way you like—go up behind him and paint a blue cross on the seat of his pants if you wish; he will not notice you. He is too engrossed in his work—sitting there and brushing several instruments lightly with a large bandana handkerchief: he is sterilizing them.

Then the patient is wheeled in, struggling violently. A mask is clapped over his face, and the operation begins. I hope I never come into contact with these madmen—if, by any chance, I do, please have my coffin fit well around the shoulders!

THE CLASS JESTER

In every classroom you will find,
 One of his ilk, one of his kind.
 One who sits with weird frown
 Upon his face, and, like a clown,
 Amuses everyone, he thinks,
 With twisted face and half-cocked winks.
 At early morn his pranks begin—
 Whittling desks from thick to thin,
 Placing tacks on every chair,

Hiding pencils, pulling hair.
 This is the fool, — none can deny!
 "I am class jester!" his reply.
 He's in the class but physically,
 One day he'll face reality.
 When that day comes, to his dismay,
 Life is no longer happy and gay.
 Life will be real, too real for him, —
 And he'll shrink away to the dark and dim!

HOMework VS. TELEVISION

In our house there's a brand-new rule
 Concerning those who go to school —
 We have to get our homework done
 Before T. V. or other fun.
 A book is dropped; there's a leak in my pen —
 Ink is all over; a mistake again!
 While hearing French and doing Chemistry,
 I'm thinking in Latin of the test in Hist'ry.
 My younger brother plays with his car;
 I write down "gas" instead of "star":
 My mind is muddled — what shall I do?
 Monkeys are quieter down in the zoo.
 There must be an answer to all of this noise;
 I don't think it's me — it must be the boys.
 I'm packing my books — my homework's not done —
 The fight is all over — the T. V.'s won!

VIRGINIA HART, XA, R.213

FRANTIC!

T'was the week before exams, and all through by brain,
 Ran deductions and equations which drove me insane;
 My head very dizzy, my mind in a daze,
 I couldn't think straight, all seemed in a haze;
 My eyes couldn't tell a five from a four;
 And to study my history seemed really a chore;
 How will I draw those shapes in geom'try,
 Or figure out numbers involving trigonom'try?
 I cram le Français all day and all soir,
 Je pense que mon French won't carry me far!
 I try out equations, all rules and all tricks,
 And still that  $x^3$  comes out as  $x^4$ !
 Do I put  $H_2O$  in a little glass cup,
 To get  $H$  &  $O_2$  with a small arrow up?
 But above all there looms a terrible fear —
 Perhaps I'll be writing these same tests next year!

ARLENE BELLAM, XA, R.213

FRUSTRATED

The source of my trouble is — T. V. ads, of course!
 I'm going out of my mind! Soon I will be spending my days in a little white jacket! I can't hide from them. I can't shut them out. I just can't escape them! What am
 I to do?

Just when the heroine is about to be murdered,
 and her boyfriend is rushing to her rescue, the camera pans to an unctuous young man whose greasy grin suggests that you partake of a gooey mixture made with whipped cream, olives, cherries, lettuce, and, of course,
 Raft cheese! (To which I am allergic, anyway.)

Nothing does it like Majax, the foaming mixture for relief of headache, neuritis, and neuralgia, so buy the car with the Torsion Air Ride that snaps, crackles, and pops; because Verlon is the pine-scented beer with a genuine silver knife and fork in every can, and its smooth, light texture doesn't upset your stomach; so every man who thinks for himself wears Darling's Red Cap, by Ruckley's, because Canada's own Hide whips up creamy in only a few minutes and its  $\frac{1}{4}$  cleansing cream keeps your hair in place all day the greaseless way. So if you want to feel stronger fast, in only ten days, or your money back, buy Mustre Cream, by Fello
 — It's quilted!

But the last straw is the image of a fairly attractive girl running her white-gloved fingers through a head of "greaseless" hair apparently belonging to Elvis Presley II.

I'm selling my television set!

LAMENT OF STUDENT

My English, my Latin, my Chemistry too!
 Alas and alack, O, what shall I do?
 They plague me, they watch me, they enter my dreams.
 Surely my brain will split at the seams!
 Dear Virgil, dear Martial, dear Caesar and all!
 In class and at school I can hear your loud call.
 You beg me, you tempt me, you ask for my time, —
 Surely to shun you would be a great crime!
 Someday I will reach you and share all your gold,

Your wisdom and beauty for me will unfold.
But meanwhile my chemistry cries for some work —
"Poor student, poor student, please do not shirk!"
Those bases, those acids, those oxygen gases
In beakers, in jars, in unbreakable glasses,
We observe you, we taste you, we burn you in flame;
To us it's a part of the chemistry game!
But again we find that our job is not done,
For sonnets and lyrics must also be won!
We labour, we study, to fill up our brains,
How helpful and handy these valuable gains!
When school's all done and we're on the right track —
How earnestly we'll wish that we could go back!!!

I AM PROUD TO BE A CANADIAN

The famous eighteenth-century French writer Voltaire once stated that he deplored two great nations such as France and Britain wasting their resources fighting over a few barren acres of snow. How interesting it would be for Monsieur Voltaire to see these "few barren acres of snow" as they are to-day — the great nation of Canada! No doubt Voltaire never in his wildest dreams imagined that a nation could grow and prosper as quickly and as strongly as Canada has done, and as she continues to do from year to year; but men of vision realized the possibilities of this virgin land, and it was through their unselfish and whole-hearted efforts that our nation was created on July 1, 1867. Here are a few reasons why I am proud to be a Canadian...

In Canada, education and democracy are most precious privileges which too many people take for granted. Our education includes not only attending school every day, but also reading newspapers and books of our own choosing, speaking freely our thoughts and ideas, and listening to the radio and watching television programs about a myriad of things. Canadian students are taught the principles of democratic government, its strengths and its weaknesses. We learn about civil rights — freedom of religion, freedom of speech, and much more. We learn how we are governed by just men whom we choose to represent us, instead of being subjected to the tyrannical rule of overbearing leaders or selfish dictators.

Opportunity should be Canada's middle name, for in Canada, opportunity is everywhere! Every imaginable opening awaits the eager young man or woman to-day — from medicine to manufacturing, from geology to sociology, from law to lumbering.

Undoubtedly a great asset of our nation is our growing enthusiasm and loyalty to Canada, an admirable spirit which is ever noticeable as Canadians more and more realize the possibilities that their country holds for them. People are conscious not only of themselves but also of their fellow-Canadians wherever they may be. The people of Springhill, Nova Scotia, have shown the world what undying spirit really is, and, of course, true to form, people all over the nation have helped in every way possible their brother-Canadians in need...

These are but a few of the numerous reasons why I am proud of my precious Canadian heritage, and I shall never for an instant forget that being a Canadian is a privilege indescribable. I hope that all Canadians feel as I do toward our country, and that they experience that same thrill each time they sing our national anthem, with proud voices reflecting their love for our nation...
"Oh Canada, glorious and free,
Oh Canada, we stand on guard for three."

A WORLD OF CONTRAST

Dark clouds rolled ominously across the sky, blotting out the golden sunshine. The wind howled louder and louder, making the trees twist, and the branches groaned like spirits risen from the dead. Suddenly the world was full of snow, falling endlessly from a grey sky, and being caught up by the full velocity of the wind. Faster and faster, farther and farther whirled the snow, whipped up by the ferocious gale to far greater heights than ever before. The world was turned into a mixture of hurricane-like winds and stinging, blinding snow.

Then, as abruptly as it had started, the blizzard ended. The wind died down, and allowed its load of snow to settle into fluffy, white drifts. The storm clouds were whisked away by a gentle breeze and the sun shone on a silent world, sparkling far more brightly than the most expensive diamond. Here and there lay fallen trees and telephone poles, now half covered by a downy blanket of snow. That was all that remained of the raging tempest.

A HAUNTED HOUSE

Have you ever thought what a haunted house really is? Many people say that there are ghosts there who rattle chains and pursue other similar pastimes to scare people away. Part of this is true. There are ghosts-but they don't waste their time on frightened people. They live in a world of their own much like ours, in which the children play, the teenagers dance and listen to their favorite records, and the adults earn a living for their families.

The young ghost has exactly four years, two and one-half days before it goes to school. These are care-free days, as are all the days of its life. In school they learn the art of ghostliness. As an example, one of the compulsory subjects is spooking. The teen-agers are the most interesting group. They have their favorite songs, and I believe that one of the more popular recordings is "The Green Ghost-Eater". The adults have to earn a living for their offsprings. Some of the ways in which they do so are by teaching in the schools of ghost-towns, writing ghost stories, (some of which you might have read) and serving at lunch counters where it is advertised that food is not touched by human hands. As you can plainly see, they have very well-rounded activities.

As you can also see, a "haunted house" is merely a "front" for a quiet colony of respectable spirits who are trying to mind their own business. So the next time you notice one that looks quite run down, don't have the city condemn it and leave those poor ghosts homeless!

OUT ACROSS THE MOOR

Throughout the woods and forests dwell
The little men in green;
They frolic and dance along the dell,
Although they're rarely seen.
Often at night when the moon rides high
Above the silent earth,
This is the time their feet do fly,
And they try to prove their worth.
The elves put the pots of gold in place,
Give money to the poor,
Deliver length on length of lace,
Then skip back o'er the moor.

The fairy folk then have their fun:
They laugh and eat and drink,

And some play jokes and tease and pun
Until the sky turns pink.

Oh! the leprechauns the Irish love
Bring them good health and cheer;

And the good Lord that dwells above
Protects them through each year.

MONKLANDS

M . . . . stands for Monklands, as you know;
O . . . . for Obedience which we must show;
N . . . . for Nearness of reports;
K . . . . for Knowledge of all sorts;
L . . . . for Latin, (if we take it);
A . . . . high Average — hope we make it!
N's . . . New work with which we're loaded;
D's . . . the Danger of being Demoted;
S . . . . with which I end my poem,
Is for the Studying done at home.

SUSIE DARLING

Susie has a darling face

On which there is a nose
That follows Susie everywhere,

Three feet above her toes,
Susie's getting big and tall,

She grows and grows and grows;
And now that cute and little nose

Is four feet from her toes,
Susie will be ten feet tall —

I know it, please don't laugh,
For I know something you do not —

Susie's a young giraffe!

DIARIES

Perhaps a person's most personal possession is his diary. Within it lies the whims, foibles, experiences, blunders, visions, likes, dislikes, and prejudices of the writer. Of course, it reflects his mood and personality.

Having read several diaries, including parts of my friends' (with their permission), I have bumped into several startling types.

The majority of the writers are very well-organized people who carefully think things out beforehand. They reason, "Think of all the wonderful things that are happening in my life! Wouldn't it be wonderful to look back at them when I'm old". They immediately buy a diary feeling that this is the answer to their problem. Their opening consists of the ever-popular, "Dear Diary, To-day..." I must say this is quite exciting; they won't have a dull moment when they are "old"!

Another group of "diary-keepers" is made up of those who believe they are another Anne Frank possessing priceless information. No time is wasted in purchasing the little book with the key. As they scribble their thoughts on the respectful pages, they are transformed into a world of wonder. Becoming so engrossed in wondering what people will say when this store of knowledge is uncovered, they often forget what they intended to write.

Diaries have other uses. Some night you may happen to be restless and find yourself wide awake around midnight. Simply for curiosity's sake, why not look out at the neighbouring houses? You may find a light or two go on. One of these lights may belong to the midnight genius. This fellow wakes up in total darkness, believing he has discovered something that will shake the world. He gropes for a pen and his diary. This fellow is quite depressed when he wakes up in the morning to find he can't make head or tale of his hieroglyphics.

How often I have come across the original character who treasures his diary and seeks to make it as personal as possible! To it he turns for escape whenever anything is bottled up inside of him. Writing makes him feel free and easy. Writing makes him see his problem in a different light. The ever-popular opening of "Dear Diary" is cast aside and replaced by a more unique name of personal meaning.

The "space squeezer" is the fellow whose diary is too tiny for all he has to write. He just can't seem to get the knack of "writing a lot in a few words". In this case shorthand seems to be the solution. As a matter of fact it kills two birds with one stone. Not only does it save space, but it prevents the average person who has had no acquaintance with shorthand from exploring its contents.

I am reminded that many teen-agers have quite a problem. Much to their dislike their diary seems to be a most popular book with younger brother or sister. Instead of discouraging them, the lock presents a challenge, especially for the mechanically minded. A course in shorthand might help — or a good hiding place out of reach of the young ones.

If an annual were published exploring the interior of several diaries belonging to those who do not even pretend to be geniuses, I am sure it would prove most popular. Now I have become so enthusiastic on the subject of diaries that I will open my own and read what little it has to offer.

MY TEACHER

A more long suffering teacher
Did never in school exist;
To nobody second,
She's certainly reckoned
An educationalist.
It is, you know, her great endeavour
To make to some extent,
Each clueless plodder a brilliant scholar
In classical sentiment.
Her object all sublime
She may achieve in time
To teach her pupils to read and rhyme,
Her pupils to read and rhyme.

BUYING SHOES

The other day while I was shopping,
I found myself abruptly stopping,
For a cute little shoe store had caught my eye,
And I wanted to see what I could buy.
I opened the door with a loud, shrill squeak,
And there stood the salesman all small and meek.
I said, "I would like a pair of your shoes."
And he said, "Come right in; I'll help you choose."
I took off my shoes which were slightly worn,
And he gave them a look of disgust and scorn,
Then I remembered, all to my woe,
My sock had a hole right in the toe!
I sat up stiffly on the edge of the chair,
And I blushed right up to the roots of my hair!
My hands became all sticky and wet,
As he gave me one glance I shall never forget.
I got up solemnly and walkly to the door,
Then I raced like a madman away from the store!

DREAMS

"Dreams are thoughts or images which pass through the mind during sleep." They may also be termed "idle fancies" which often occur during the course of a day, especially my day.

Do you ever go to bed at night, wishing you could dream of something — or someone special? I do!

The big formal dance is still in the distant future, but come bedtime, I imagine how wonderful it would be "if only he would ask me."

Unfortunately, when slumber takes over, I do not possess the ability to keep my mind in the same train of thought, and I sleep through the entire night without dreaming at all.

There are dreams which may be classified as "weird". They begin very comfortably and true to life, but have the strangest endings!

I remember such a dream I had not too long ago. Apparently, I was visiting my cousin who lives on the next street to my home. The fantastic part was the fact that my cousin had acquired a baby pink elephant as a pet. This animal was so small that I could cuddle it in my hand. Contrary to the popular belief that elephants have long trunks and ears, this one had a thin layer of fur and short ears with something that resembled a trunk. But the dream never ended, and I was left patting the thin fur of this unusual creature.

The most dreadful kind of dream comes in the form of a nightmare. Many people never get over "a bad dream." They let it haunt them until it is necessary for them to visit a psychiatrist! Others treat their vision as a superstition.

A friend told me she dreamt that the car in which she and her "date" were riding went off the road into the Back River on the way home from a party. In her dream the boy was killed. I have tried desperately to convince her that "it was only a dream," but she refuses ever to drive along the River Road again!

Dreams are mystical. We wonder why we dream. We want to know the "meanings" of our dreams. Could they be warnings of danger? Might they be prophecies? Are we simply projecting ourselves into the subconscious where we cannot control our re-actions? Whatever they are, we can be sure people the world over will continue dreaming, — whether it be of "the" boyfriend, pink elephants, or driving into a river.

THE TROJAN HORSE

When Paris was a prince of Troy,
He went and got a wife;
With Helen, loveliest of all,
He wished to spend his life.
But both of them, the legends say,
Had quite ignored her spouse;
A prince of Greece her husband was,
His name was Menelaus.
And so with soldiers brave and bold
The Greek attacked his foe;
In ten years' time he hadn't won,
But still he wouldn't go.
The Greeks then built a wooden horse,
'Twas hollow right inside;
They took some soldiers, and in there
The soldiers they did hide.
The Trojans took the statue in,
But, when they'd gone to bed,
The soldiers left the wooden horse; —
The Trojans soon were dead.

CANADA'S DEFENCE

Throughout Canada there are many ground observer towers. In these towers are trained personnel constantly watching our skies. This is a story about what happens in one of these towers.

It was July twenty third about ten o'clock in the morning. Bill Adams had just relieved the previous man on watch. Time passed, and as Bill was sipping a cup of coffee, he heard a loud road in the sky. Curious, he went outside to see what it was. The noise came nearer and nearer, but he could not see anything. Finally it came into view. It was a number of unidentified aircraft! Racing back he picked up a red phone. "Aircraft flash!" "Aircraft flash!" he repeated. The operator connected him with Air Defence Command St. Hubert. Another operator said, "Air Defence Filter Centre, go ahead." Bill repeated his message in code. "Four, J. B. L. NO. W." This means "four jet bombers flying low; no delay in spotting aircraft; direction West." The Filter Centre relayed this message to the plotting room.

Two miles away at the end of the runway six pilots were alerted. Dashing outside, the pilots climbed aboard their Jets. In a matter of minutes they were off the ground and racing towards the enemy. This was a practice run. However, it could have been the real thing. The credit goes to the men at the end of the runway, and also to the men in the towers — for without these people Canada would be defenceless.

REVERIES

The Moor was filled with gloom and fog,
The moon gleamed slyly on lake and lea,
Slinking shadows along the path,
Distant cry of sailors at sea.
Everlasting call of the gull,
Silent movement of ship on water,
Faint crackle of twig on mull,
Dark clothed shadows with arching backs,
Outlined against the sombre sky.
Wind-torn brambles and rustling leaves,
Probing fingers far and nigh.
Ebony blackness spreading round,
Crackle and rustle seem to cease.
Inky sky with twinkling stars
Giving the Moor stillness and peace.
Veil-like mist slowly faded,

Stars like lanterns light the way,
Gentle as a wing-tailed Falcon
Stealthily approaches dawn of day.

ONE LESSON LEARNED

Cautiously I extended my hand to pick the last apple from the extreme end of the top branch of the swaying tree. We had been picking the delicious fruit all day and I had left the best one on the tree. My intentions were to come back to the orchard late at night, pick the apple, and then take all the time I wanted to eat my treasure. As far as I knew, no one suspected my scheme. But how wrong I was! Two little children who lived on the next farm had been watching every movement I had made.

After a lot of trouble, escaping unnoticed from the house, I finally found myself groping for the piece of fruit. It was not there! Again and again I tried to find the apple in the tree. But no success! Very disappointed and surprised, I made my way back home to go to bed. The following day, two small children visited our home and presented me with the missing fruit. The only difference with the apple now was that it had two big bites out of it, and the name of the child who had bitten there had been stuck above the space. Although I never discovered how they gained possession of the desired fruit, this incident taught me to share the things I have or want.

VIVRE

"Pourquoi naître, vivre et mourir?" se sont demandé plusieurs philosophes ou même des gens comme vous et moi. Riches et pauvres voient leur vie terminée d'une façon imprévue, et pour la plupart au moment où ils s'y attendent le moins. Ceux qui ont amassé des fortunes n'ont pas eu parfois le temps d'en jouir. Tout cela nous ramène à cette question: la vie vaut-elle la peine d'être vécue?

Cela ne veut pas dire, évidemment, qu'il vaudrait mieux se suicider puisqu'on doit mourir en tout cas, mais plus d'un aimerait profiter indéfiniment des avantages apportés par l'argent ou même par une vie simple. Certains disent qu'on vit afin de produire des générations meilleures que les précédentes; d'autres affirment que la vie n'est intéressante que lorsqu'on est jeune. Ces derniers ont tout fait pour trouver un élixir de jeunesse, mais n'ont pas encore réussi. La seule conclusion possible, c'est qu'il faut laisser les choses suivre leur cours et jouir de la vie sans perdre un moment et surtout sans regrets.

MONTPARNASSE, LE SOIR

Vous apercevez les longues terrasses illuminées des cafés, les devantures brillantes des bars, les entrées tapageuses des dancings et partout, en traits mobiles, en éclairs zigzagants en lettres immenses, les mille feux des tubes de néon grimpant le long des façades, à l'assaut de l'ombre. Vous voyez les clients attablés aux terrasses des cafés et ceux qui soulèvent les lourdes portières de velours des boîtes de nuit. Comme les deux mendiants où les petites vendeuses de bouquets, comme les badauds des trottoirs, vous happiez au passage un air de jazz, vous jetez un regard sur les belles inconnues qui marchent dans la foule avec un sourire vide, et vous enviez tous ceux qui se promènent de bar en bar, libres d'aller et de venir par les rues où tremblent les enseignes lumineuses, où une griserie légère, un plaisir doré semblent les attendre à chaque pas.

LA TEMPÊTE

C'était un très beau jour d'été, un jour de soleil avec quelques nuages moutonnés dans le ciel, et un peu de brise. Soudainement le vent se calma, les bruits de la forêt cessèrent, les arbres se tinrent immobiles; il semblait qu'ils attendaient un désastre mystérieux — mais ce calme n'a pas duré.

Sans préavis, le ciel devint très sombre. Au loin, on pouvait entendre un gémissement bas qui augmentait peu à peu — plus fort, toujours plus fort. Les gros arbres fléchirent en unisson, activés par une main puissante, et toujours — aucun bruit, sauf le gémissement du vent. Tout à coup, un éclat vif, aveuglant, déchira le ciel! Un coup de tonnerre jeta son défi, et puis — le déluge! Les pauvres animaux de la forêt, se blotissant péniblement, souffrirent sous la férocité de la tempête. Paralysés par la frayeur, ils attendaient la fin. L'orage continua pendant longtemps, effrayant le petit monde de la forêt. Et puis, aussi vite qu'il avait commencé, la tempête cessa; le vent s'arrêta, le ciel s'éclaircit et le soleil rayonna de nouveau. C'était encore une fois un très beau jour, un jour de soleil tel qu'il avait été avant la rage et la tempête.

CETTE ANNEE DE 1959

En chaque jour de cette année de 1959, souhaitons que tous les hommes de bonne volonté sur la terre tournent leurs pensées vers leurs frères des autres nations.

En chaque jour de cette année de 1959, rappelons-nous que quelles que soient notre race, notre langue ou nos croyances, les besoins de nos voisins d'autres nations ne diffèrent pas tellement de ceux de nos voisins les plus proches.

En chaque jour de cette année de 1959, rêvons d'un monde où tous les hommes pourront vivre toujours en paix. Car, c'est des rêves que sont toujours venues les réalités.

Donc, en chaque jour de cette année, que tous les hommes de bonne volonté dans tous les pays saluent l'instrument que les nations ont créé pour l'établissement d'une paix durable.

Graduation 1958

June 6, 1958, was the magic word to approximately 120 boys and girls in this school last year — the date of Monklands High School's first Graduation Ceremony and Dance.

In the afternoon the Graduation Ceremony started with a Processional March of the graduating students, followed by the singing of "O Canada." The Invocation was given by the Rev. C. J. MacKay, D.D., after which the Lords' Prayer was sung. The Chairman, Mr. R. E. Wagar, made a few introductory remarks. An instrumental trio, Charmaine Stone, Gail Golden, and Reginald Herman, played Allegro — from the Trio in C Major by Beethoven. A brilliant class history was given by Judy Stockwell. The presentation of Graduation Certificates by Mr. Hewson was followed by a splendid valedictory by Ronald Williams. After three selections by the Grade X choir, Mr. Hewson gave a stirring address to the graduates. Following the Graduation Hymn, the Benediction was given by the Rev. G. F. Dewey, D.D.;

then all rose for the National Anthem. The music and choir were supervised by Miss M. E. Dumbell and Mr. W. G. Blair.

After the solemnity of the afternoon, the evening programme was lighter. Mr. and Mrs. Hewson, together with Mr. Chesley and the Grade XI class teachers, received the graduates and their guests. The Gym had been transformed into a tropical setting under the direction of Mr. G. Dav, Harriet Rutman, and many volunteers. There was dancing until 9.30 p.m., when a delicious buffet was served by Macy's. Dancing continued until 2.00 a.m., when a complete floor show was given from the Chez Paree (courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Luterman). The last half-hour was spent dancing, after which the crowds broke up into smaller groups, going on to house parties and breakfast.

Monklands Student Council

Student Council activities this year opened with a dance, "The New Wing Fling", which was followed by a variety of other dances. Lunch time dances were also introduced to the school and were found quite successful.

A study hall was opened at lunch time for those who wished to make use of extra time for study. Eating conditions in the two basements were improved.

A trip to Ottawa was organized by the Council, and new clubs were started in the school.

In February, the Council held a snow sculpture contest and, on the whole, a remarkable job was done by the classes.

The Council will again this year supply money for scholarships. As usual, Student Council pins have been purchased for every member of the Council.

Our advisor was Mr. Hewson, whom we thank most sincerely.

Dances

The year 1958-'59 was a successful year for dances organized by our Student Council.

In honour of the new addition to Monklands High, the October "New Wing Fling" was held.

Last year's graduates were welcomed back once more at the "Reunion Rumble" in November. Music was supplied by Harvey Lonn and his band.

Eaton's Band Box provided the music for the "Hard Times Hop", held in December, in aid of the Springhill Disaster Fund.

One of the bigger events of the year was the crowning of our "royalty". The popular Dynatomes played for Monklands' "Coronation Ball". Honours fell as follows:

Queen: Kathy Lendon
King: Andy McKenzie
Princess: Susan Mock
Prince: Ernie Smith

The annual Sadie Hawkins dance, called the "Hag's Drag", consisted of a rather weird crowd. The "she's" "dragged" their favourite "he's", wearing upon their heads the hats made for them by their escort.

A "Spring Prom" was held successfully during that season.

The final dance, and actually the most important one, took place in June. It was the "Graduation Dance" for grade 11 pupils who were celebrating the "last fling" of their high school years.

Ilse Berzins

Talent Show

Monklands High School's 4th annual Talent Show was presented on the afternoon and evening of March 3.

The School chorus line opened the show. Then Bob Macdonald, and Brenda Sullivan, who did excellent jobs as M.C.'s, took over. Featured in the first act was a display of gymnastics, and a clever "take off" of the football team by the cheerleaders and majorettes.

The second act overflowed with songs and dances from plays and ballets. Current rock 'n roll tunes were heard as well. The entertainment, closing with selections from "The Charmers", proved to be a great success.

The show was directed by a committee of five students. The committee composed of Brenda Sullivan, Sharon Goodman, Naomi Singerman, Bob Macdonald, and Andy McKenzie, was assisted by the staff advisors, Miss E. Winter and Mr. E. A. Robinson, whom we thank most sincerely for their time and guidance. All proceeds went to "The Banner" and the Junior Red Cross.

The Art Club

This year the art lovers of Monklands High got together with Mr. Day and formed an after school art group. Here we painted to our hearts' delight, discussed painting, and helped one another with an interchange of ideas. Our thanks go to Mr. Day who made it possible for us.

Karen Gray

The Ottawa Trip

Below zero weather greeted the Grade Ten and Eleven Monklands students at the station on February 6, 1959. The Ottawa-bound train was a welcome refuge from the cold and a spirit of excitement prevailed.

Arriving safely at Ottawa's Union Station, the pupils began their trek to the Parliament Buildings. They were led directly into the House of Commons, where they became absorbed in the daily question-and-answer period.

After a delicious meal in pleasant surroundings, an interesting tour of the Parliament Buildings followed, an experience no one will forget. All eyes glowed with pride as they inspected the beauty and stateliness of Canada's National Government Buildings. The "height" of the tour was the elevator-ride up the Peace Tower, where the entire city could be viewed in one glance.

Our Ottawa trip ended with a visit to the National Gallery, where the works of great artists are gathered.

The success of the trip to Ottawa was due to the Honourable William Hamilton, M.P. (who took time off to speak with the group), to our principal, Mr. Hewson, to Miss Davison, Miss Winter, and Mr. Ramsay, whose splendid organization resulted in an unforgettable experience for all.

Pearl Cantor

Orchestra

The orchestra, under the excellent direction of Miss Dumbell, contributed to another year of music at Monklands High. The activities were limited this year, with the orchestra playing only for the Armistice Day Service, and the Christmas Carol Service. The performances, however, were up to their usual high standards and, with the acquisition of more instruments, the orchestra has developed a tone to top that of former years. It can truly be said that the Monklands High School Orchestra helped greatly in making music enjoyable in the past year at Monklands.

Winston Purdy

Junior Girls Choir

The Monklands High School Senior Band, directed by Mr. Grant Blair, enjoyed another highly rewarding season. The activities included playing for the football games, accompanying the hymns at the Armistice Day Service, participating in the Education Week Church Service, playing a concert in the spring, and a second successful trip to the Ottawa Music Festival in May. Again it was a memorable year full of music and fun.

Junior Red Cross

This year we supplied a Tiny Tim wheelchair to the School for Crippled Children, and contributed about $300 toward the heart and lung machine for the Montreal Children's Hospital. The money came from class donations, revel sales, and movies after school. Monklands High filled fifty Christmas stockings and sold 1875 calendars. Our thanks to Miss Osler for her enthusiastic help and direction.

The executive for 1958-59 was: Philip Blackman, President; Rona Bond, Vice-President; Anna Steinman, Secretary; Jim Ross, Treasurer; Staff advisor, Miss Osler.

Bible Class

Looking through the Word of God and learning more about Him, the Bible Class has met every Tuesday at noon-hour under the direction of Mr. Waugh. We have found the Bible to be truly "a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path". We extend our welcome to ANYONE who would like to meet with us next year.

The Perfect Board

The Prefect Board had a successful year in helping to keep order and discipline in Monklands High.

The Prefects' chief duties were: ushering at Home and School meetings, calming the spectators at football games, and keeping the halls and stairs free from stragglers.

The Board of Prefects consisted of: John Moersfelder, Pamela Miles, Andy McKenzie, Margaret Smythe, Sunni Tepfenhardt, Susan Sorg, Ilse Berzins, Marion Cales, Sandra Morrison, Joyce Wilson, Judy Jackson, Vija Baltins, Gary Handelsman, David Hay, Bobbie Oakley, Ross Mackenzie, Herbert Gee, Jim Dochorty, Winston Purdy, Don Roy, and Peter Zilkals.

Our First Snow Sculpture

February 4 found all Monklanders in a spirit of great anticipation, for that was the day our artistic attempts at snow sculpture were to be judged.

As a result, Room 210's "Sphinx" received first place honors. A close second was Room 302's "Banner", followed by Room 209's "Envy".

Our back field was dotted with mounds of snow, ranging in shape from racing cars and tanks to wooden shoes and snow castles. Many classes participated — and the results were varied, artistic, and original.

The judges were: Mr. Hewson, Mr. Matthews, Miss Osler, Sharon Goodman, and Fred Broomhall.

Lynn Frank

Yeomen Of The Guard

Because of a wave of illness that swept through our school in March, it was regrettably decided to postpone the production of Yeoman of the Guard until Autumn. We shall all look forward to seeing Monklands' first major operatic production next Fall.

Tabloid Field Day, 1958

We had a perfect day for Monklands' annual Tabloid Field Day. The whole school participated morning and afternoon. The events were: 1) Relay Race (mixed), 4 boys and 4 girls from each class running a total of 240 yards; 2) High Jump; 3) Broad Jump; 4) Bird Throw; 5) Shot-Put; 6) Bowling; 7) Bench Walking; 8) Fifty-Yard Dash; 9) Skipping; 10) Tug-o'-War; 11) Dodge Ball.

This is the most popular and final day of interclass sports. Faculty and student body come together in close cooperation for the common goal of success and sportsmanship. Ribbons are given to first, second and third place classes, and crests to year-end champions. The "champs" of last year in Grade XI were Room 306, followed by Rooms 307 and 308. In Grade X the "champs" were Room 212 and 210. Following them were 209 and 214. In Grade IX Room 206 placed first, followed by 204 and 205. Last, but not least, Grade VIII "champs" were Room 206 trailed by 107 and 102.

On behalf of the student body as a whole, a voice of thanks goes to Mr. Hewson and our gym instructors of last year, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Montin, Miss Farquharson and Miss Ferguson, who did all the paper-work and preparation for the meet. We would also like to thank all the teachers for their help. Mr. Henderson did a fabulous job of organizing the field day, which resulted in one of the best coordinated field days Monklands has ever had.

Christmas Carol Service

The Christmas Pageant and Carol Service has become the herald of the holiday season at Monklands. This year it was held on December 22. A sextet of trombonists played Christmas Carols for the parents as they entered the school. Our Junior Girls' Choir, directed by Miss Mary Dumbell, supplied the musical accompaniment which lent realism to the scenes of the play. The development of the theme, diction, and tableaux were under the expert direction of Mrs. Rohr, assisted by Miss Miller. A gallery choir, led by Mr. Caley, with Mr. Grant Blair at the organ, added greatly to the spirit of the pageant. Selected instrumentalists, David Cantor and Stanley Albert, provided a trombone and trumpet duet. The audience was deeply moved as the Christmas Story unfolded before them again in music, drama, and tableaux.

The generous giving of time and experience of many staff members, and the enthusiasm and faithfulness of the participating members of the Student Body combined to make a programme that was worthy of this beautiful tradition of Monklands High.

Educational Week Church Service

On the invitation of the Rev. C. MacKay, D.D., Monklands High School led the service at Knox Crescent and Kensington Presbyterian Church on March 1, inaugurating Education Week.

The Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. G. Blair, played the Prelude, Offertory, and Postlude. The Senior Mixed Choir, directed by Miss Mary Dumbell, led the singing of the hymns and sang three anthems. Mr. Hewson, Principal of Monklands, delivered the sermon entitled "A Sower Went Forth to Sow," which stressed the necessity of full co-operation between home and school if the total character and wellrounded personality of the child are to be fully developed.

The congregation consisted largely of high school staff members and students.

Spring Concert

Monklands' Senior Band, under the baton of Mr. Blair, presented its first concert this year on April 28. The ensemble, numbering forty players, played a variety of numbers ranging from a classically beautiful Bach Air, to a rhythmical South American "Cha-Cha". Two members of the band, Winston Purdy on clarinet and Norman MacKay on piano, illustrated the particular beauty of these instruments in solos.

The Junior Band, consisting of twenty-five members, showed fine progress in its playing of several pieces.

Mr. Caley led the Girls' Choir in a number of delightful songs, rounding off an evening of really excellent music of which the school may well be proud.

Ottawa Festival

The Ottawa Festival held again this year proved to be a wonderful experience for those who attended. Students from many parts of the country had the opportunity of meeting and performing at this time. Monklands' Senior Band under the direction of Mr. Grant Blair was one of the contestants. Mr. Blair may well be proud of his hard work which reaped its reward at this performance.

SENIOR "A" FOOTBALL

1958-59 saw Monklands' team enter Senior "A" competition for the first time. In the first game, the team lost to D'Arcy McGee by one touchdown. The second, an exhibition game at Bishop's College, began a list of serious injuries from which the team never fully recovered. However, Dave Hay and Andy McKenzie played like "all-stars" throughout the season. The signal calling was well handled by Ron Maddocks. In the last game of the season Monklands defeated Rosemount 13-7. This year the odds against the team were high, Experience and a large supply of players were lacking, and many serious injuries were sustained early in the season. Our thanks to Mr. Blane for coaching our team.

Gary Handelsman

SENIOR "A" SOCCER

Our team this year was composed of numerous junior players who showed great spirit in playing against boys much their senior in age and experience. Captained by Peter Zikalns, with Howie Wolff as net tender, the team finished its season in gay spirits with a victory of 1-0 over Outremont High. Our thanks to Mr. Lumsden for his "undying faith" in our squad.

Peter Zikalns

Front row: B. Rand, F. Peters, P. Zikalns, H. Wolff, J. Schwartz, Y. Laur, G. Zikalns.

Back row: D. Haward, U. Greenbaum, B. Dalphine, J. Khan, R. Woodhouse, R. Acreman, P. Robbins, V. Hagel, Mr. Lumsden.

MONKLANDS' MAJORETTES (1958-59)

This season Monklands' Majorettes, under the leadership of Sandra Morrison, had a very successful and busy year. Besides leading the band at football games, they appeared on stage for the Pep Rally and the Talent Show. A new and exciting event was the Santa Claus Parade, in which eight of the girls participated.

A hearty thanks to Miss Dumbell for her help!

Dorothy Roll

Front row: Linda Bernstein, Margaret Smythe, Sandra Morrison, Carol Burcombe, Dorothy Roll.

GOLF TEAM

This year's Golf Team played in the Annual High School Golf Tournament held at Summerlea Golf Course. Monklands' team carded a team total score of 387, a nine-stroke better average than last year's team.

This year's low man was Ron Maddock, who carded a 91. Mr. Blane, our coach, deserves a big vote of thanks.

Gerry Barnes

Left to right: Mr. L. Blane (coach), Robert Craig, Keith Tannahill, Ron Maddocks, Gerry Barnes, Richard Doyle, Murray Posner.

JUNIOR SOCCER

The Junior Soccer team had a disappointing season but gained valuable experience for next year. Tony Kazar and Harold Debur were the key figures on the team, and Bruce Magalise played very well in nets. Our thanks to Mr. Shaw who coached the team.

BANTAM WATER POLO

The team had a rousing but not too successful season. Many of the players felt this was due to not having a pool of their own—Monklands was the only team without a "home" pool. Their manager, Russell Jones, and Mr. Ramsay, the coach, deserve a special vote of thanks for their time and effort.

Bob Howden

Front: P. Zilkalns.

Second row: S. Smiley, U. Greenbaum, M. Frankel, E. Wolff, G. Barnes, R. Maddocks, A. Altshuler, V. Auns, Y. Auns, C. Wolff.

SENIOR "A" BASKETBALL

In its initial year in Senior "A" competition, the Green and Gold quintet opened the season with impressive wins over Northmount and Loyola. The team lost the next three games, but came back triumphantly with a 71-56 win over both West Hill and Rosemount. A second win over West Hill, with the amazing score of 93-60, saw Raivo Haget net 42 points. Then the team lost a heart-breaker to Montreal High, 51-49, and with it the right to challenge them for the senior "A" championship. Top scorer was Raivo Hagel, averaging 20 points a game, while other consistent scorers were Captain Vil Auruns, Ron Maddocks, and Stan Smiley. Peter Zilkalns was a standout on defence. Tranks go to Mr. Robinson for coaching the team, and Veljo Law, record-keeper, and manager Dave Lawe.

Vilis Auns

MONKLANDS' CHEERLEADERS

Seven regulars and three substitute cheerleaders were chosen to support our teams. The girls attended all the football games and most of the basketball games, much to the delight of both the players and the spectators. They practised hard, and were rewarded with a day-long trip to Bishop's College School, where our football team played an exhibition game.

Brenda Sullivan

Back row: Kathy Wheeler, Esther Katz, Eleanor Midvidy, Karen Gray.

M. Frankel, D. Holder, J. White, R. Schwartz, R. Anderson, N. Helfield, H. Black, E Calman, A. Small.

Front: R. Saul, R. Koby, E. Rrandsepp, Mr. W. Elliott.

M.H.S. BANTAM BASKETBALL TEAM

This year our Bantam Basketball Team made a fairly good showing in the inter-scholastic ranks. Many of our players had not yet begun to play organized basketball when the first try-outs were held. Under the guidance of our coach, Mr. Elliott, we began to learn many skills which were quite new to us, and, after a few weeks, we were playing a greatly-improved brand of basketball.

Robert Schwartz

GYMNASTIC TEAM

Back row: N. Raudsepp, E. Smith, D. Stark, L. Davison, H. Moffat, V. Feuerstack, Mr. Montin, (coach).

The Gymnastic team, which has practised hard since early September, will be taking part in several dual meets during the next couple of months. The championship meet, in which all the schools in Montreal compete, will be held in Montreal West High School in late April. The team has high hopes for success, especially for Ernie Smith, who placed second in the Provincial Championships held at McGill. We would like to thank Mr. Montin for giving his time so generously in coaching the team.

BANTAM HOCKEY

This year's edition of Monklands Bantam hockey had a very slow start but ended the season with four straight victories. High scorers in the team were Ronnie Lack and Lorne Gette, while Bruce Magalise tended the net well. The boys would like to thank Mr. Jamieson for his time in coaching the team.

WRESTLING

Monklands Wrestling Team had a good season this year, winning all but one meet against five other schools. This sport has attracted many boys in Monklands. About twenty-five wrestlers composed the team that was sent to the final inter-school tournament at McGill.

The team placed third, but won four individual championships: Ron Eliosoff in the 110 pound class, Ernie Smith in the 137 pound class, Gerry Barnes in the 147 pound class, and David Hay in the heavy weight. For the last three champions mentioned, it was a repeat performance of last year's meet. Our thanks, to Mr. Montin for his time and coaching.

David Hay

CURLING

This year Monklands introduced the Monklands High School Curling Team. At the first bonspiel at St. George's Club, our boys won one and lost two, but had an exceptionally good time. During the course of the second, the "Pepsi-Cola Schoolboy Bonspiel", our curlers won one and lost two again. The team was ably skipped by Chris Cant. It can be safely said that many a happy day was opened up for the boys in this newest of M.H.S. activities, coached by Mr. Blane.

SWIMMING TEAM

The Swimming Team had a fairly good year. Practices were held at the West Hill pool, as were the swimming meets. Several of our swimmers were eligible to enter the championship meet. There were two categories in this year's competitions — the individual medley, consisting of breast, back, and free stroke; and the relay team consisting of four men. The team would like to thank Mr. Ramsay for his excellent coaching.
