HOPE

Happiness isn't accidental
It's created by you.

SMILE

Neil Evans

When the sweet tall length of October's branch
Hurl themselves naked against the sky
And lash wildy at the wind
Breaking the silence of thought
Then I know that soon
Winter comes

MR. G. DAY

The trees wave their branches
As if to bidden me to come.
Their hands intervene to make different pattern
That do excite me.
Bidden I must go and sit by their feet
To learn the wisdom that will be thrown onto me.
I sit there wondering until our eyes meet
And then I know that I have been choosen
to become a tree.
I wait there wondering at the transformation,
As my mind slowly dissolves and becomes free
My arms turn green, my face hard
As knowledge is passed onto me.

An Apology

If I were grateful for all their efforts
maybe I'd smile
when they helped (with expectant grin)
me
to arrange my mind. but I feel the bonds of captivity tighten
when the frail offering fingers touch my sleeve.

LESLIE WARREN

Anger creeps in, quietly,
Stealthily gaining territory,
Increasing in size and strength
As the hot words of argument
Feed its growing fire.

It works from the inside out
Starting as a knot of explosive power
In the centre of the battlefield.
It slowly spreads outward,
Then explodes, covering the area
With a wash of red fury.

DIANE CHOUINARD

Where is nature gone?
Have you seen it?
Have you?

I know where nature has gone.
Man has taken it away.
Man has taken it away.

Why?

Why have you?

Where did you put it,
Mr. Humanity?

STANLEY LUNAN

Why is there war?
There is war to Decrease the surplus Population.
Humbug!
Etc., etc., etc.....

Why is there air?
There is air to
Fill up volleyballs
And footballs
Etc., etc., etc.....
Humbug!

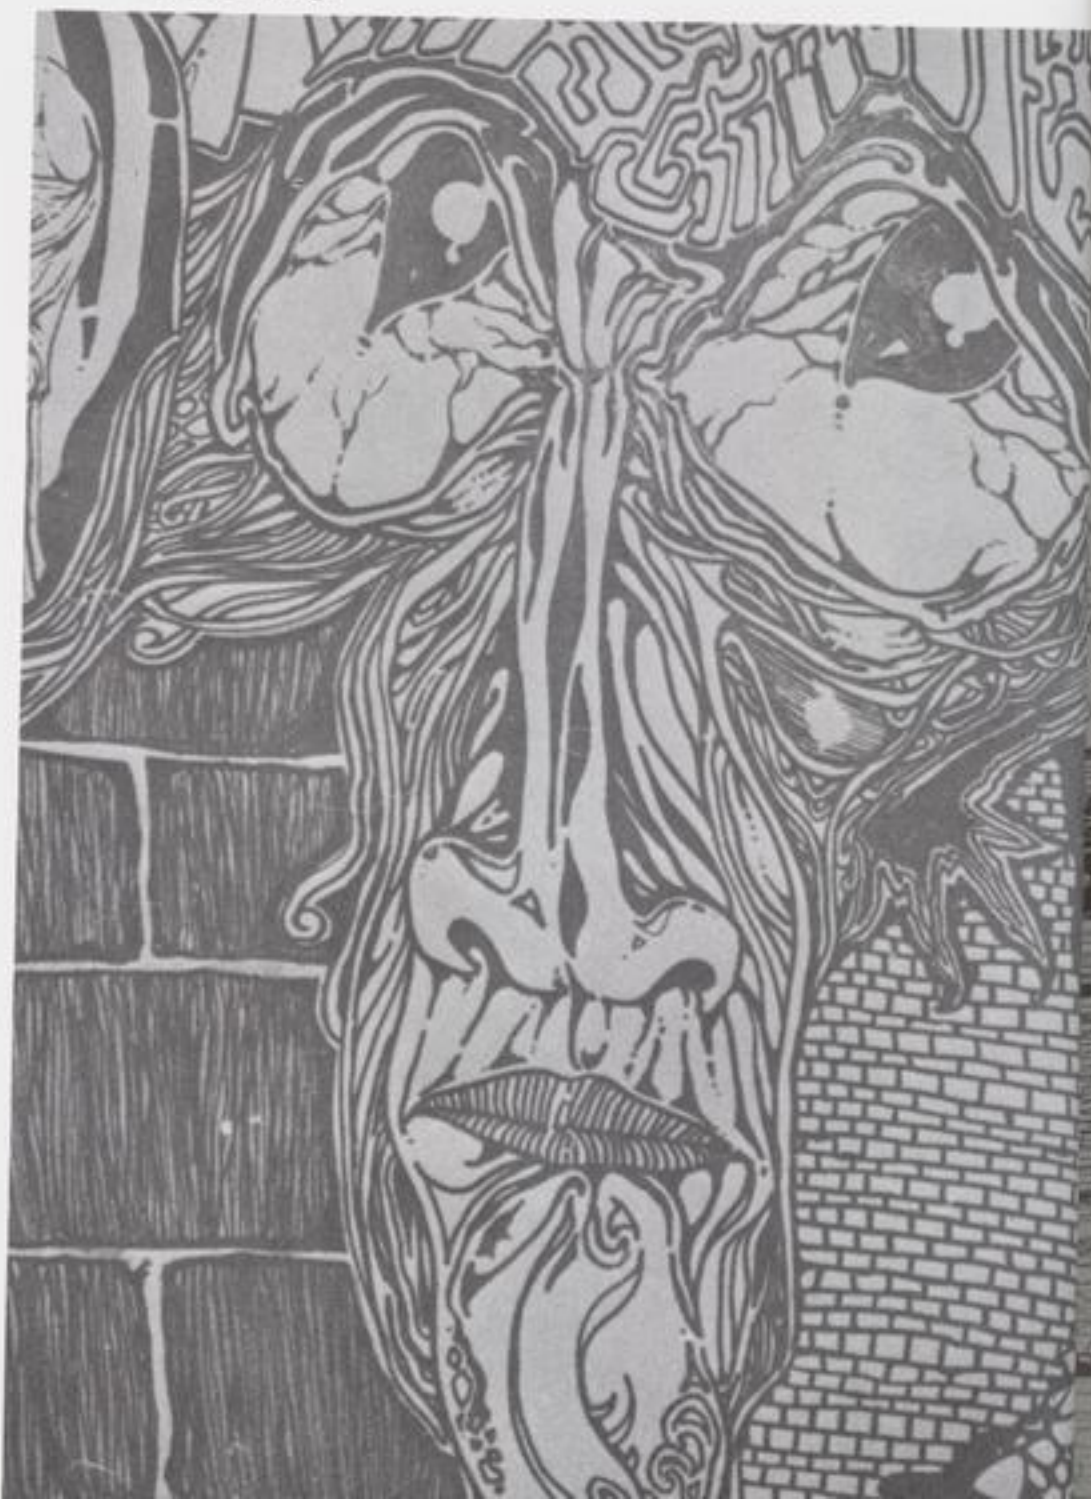

Why is there life?
There is life to
Contaminate the world.
Humbug!
Etc., etc., etc.....

Why is there love?
There is love to Waste the time
Of the day.

Due to our good nature
We will not continue
With this discussion.
Humbug!
Etc., etc., etc.....

Tears

Outside, a smile enlightens your face your hair is stroked to a sheen you wear your Sunday best
and you carry an air of perfume.
You greet them with warmth,
for they are too shallow to know your sorrow.

Inside, you are knotted
in a million pieces,
falling apart, fragile to the touch,
insane with grief.

Can they not see inside?
Only the tears shed from inside to out
Show them your mind,
Not your shell.

Once again the Banner is unfurled. In it you will find many references to work and play 1970-71. It has been a good year. Students have been cooperative, activities have been reasonably successful, and in all, it has been a "happy" school.

There is a great satisfaction in being the Principal of Monklands. It has been good to have worked with you, and yet we are pleased to see you grow up and graduate. That is life. It is a pleasant one here at Monklands.

The Banner Editor and Staff are to be congratulated. They have worked hard to produce a good magazine under a very stringent budget.

To you all - bonne chance - may all your endeavours be successful.

M. H. S. ATHLETICS

Monklands High School's total population in 1970-71 was 1030. This by today's standards of high schools is considered relatively small. Whether we are small or not, our girls' and boys' athletic programmes were "big league" in every way.

The girls' programme gave Monklands its first championship this year as our girls won the City Basketball Championship. Other sports such as tennis, gymnastics, badminton and volleyball have put our girls on a highly competitive basis with other schools.

The boys' programme represented our school in every major sport. We ran two football teams, two soccer teams, one golf team, one cross-country team, one water-polo, one basketball, one curling, one hockey, one swimming, one ski, two volleyball, one tennis and one rugby team.

All of these teams would not have been in any competitions were it not for excellent staff support, not only in coaching the teams, but also in taking over classes so that coaches could leave with their teams.

Overall, our teams displayed good sportsmanship even in the most trying situations. Let's make 1971-72 just as good as this past year.

THE PROBLEM IS ENGINEERING.

Create a landing strip in the Arctic darkness. 450 miles from the North Pole. In 100 mph winds. At well below zero.

You might have to do just that, if you'd earned your Officer's Commission under the Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP) in the Canadian Armed Forces.

But you'd be prepared.

ROTP is just like enrolling in university. You apply for ROTP as a high school student who is in a university academic programme. And you're selected in competition with other applicants across Canada.

As an officer cadet in ROTP you're educated on our fully subsidized Military College plan that leads to a degree in Engineering, Sciences or Arts. Upon graduation you're promoted to lieutenant rank; a well educated, highly trained professional. Prepared to face up to the toughest challenge.

Could you engineer a landing strip in the Arctic? After ROTP training, we think so.
